

CH

))))))))

))))))))

)
)
)
)
)

)
)
)
)
)

)

)

IC

the nd te as di y t a h y
s o (p t o
the yin en r a s b de

submit an amended complaint limited to a single claim [or multiple claims asserted against a single defendant].

The plaintiff has misjoined claims and defendants. In George v. Smith, 507 F.3d 605 (7th Cir. 2007), the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit examined a similar prisoner complaint containing a laundry list of grievances. The Court of Appeals admonished the district court for failing to “question” the plaintiff’s decision to “join 24 defendants, and approximately 50 distinct claims, in a single suit.” George, 507 F.3d at 607. In the case at bar, the plaintiff has numerous complaints in connection with two brief stays on a “guest writ” at the Stateville Correctional Center. Pursuant to George, the court should have pruned the complaint on initial review. Although the instant complaint is less extreme than the sprawling complaint repudiated in George, dismissal under Fed. R. Civ. P. 18 and 19 is required.

In response to the motion to dismiss, the plaintiff contends that all of the claims raised are related because he is suing over the totality of the conditions at Stateville. However, the plaintiff cannot get around the George ruling simply by casting his unrelated allegations all under the umbrella of “totality.” Otherwise, every inmate could thwart George simply by using the “totality” argument.

As discussed in George,

The controlling principle appears in Fed. R. Civ. P. 18(a): “A party asserting a claim to relief . . . may join, either as independent or as alternate claims, as many claims, legal, equitable, or maritime, as the party has against an opposing party.” Thus multiple claims against a single party are fine, but Claim A against Defendant 1 should not be joined with unrelated Claim B against Defendant 2. Unrelated claims against different defendants belong in different suits, not only to prevent the sort of morass that this 50-claim, 24-defendant suit produced but also to ensure that prisoners pay the required filing fees. . . .

George, 507 F.3d at 607. The plaintiff’s complaint containing distinct claims against unrelated defendants cannot stand. Id. at 606. The court in no way impugns the plaintiff’s motives in filing a single complaint raising multiple, unrelated claims; the court simply finds that the claims are misjoined.

The court notes that the complaint concerns events that took place in 2007. The statute of limitations for Section 1983 actions filed in Illinois is two years. See 735 ILCS § 5/13-202; Henderson v. Bolanda, 253 F.3d 928, 931 (7th Cir. 2001). Therefore, dismissal without prejudice should not prevent the plaintiff from pursuing his misjoined claims in separate lawsuits.

For the foregoing reasons, the plaintiff's "blunderbuss" complaint is dismissed without prejudice. The plaintiff must choose a single, core claim to pursue under this case number. Any other claims the plaintiff may wish to prosecute must be brought in separate lawsuits. Because the court is dismissing the amended complaint on grounds of improper joinder, the court has no occasion to evaluate the substantive merit of the plaintiff's claims. Nevertheless, in drafting his amended complaint, the plaintiff should be mindful of the various challenges to the complaint raised by the defendants.

In sum, the defendants' motion to dismiss on grounds of misjoinder is granted. The plaintiff is granted thirty days in which to submit an amended complaint limited to a single cause of action. Failure to submit a third amended complaint within thirty days of the date of this order will result in summary dismissal of this case in its entirety, on the understanding that the plaintiff no longer wishes to pursue his claims.

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the defendants' motion to dismiss [#42] is granted. The complaint is dismissed, without prejudice to submitting, within thirty days from the date of this order, an amended complaint in accordance with this order.

Enter:

JOHN W. DARRAH
United States District Court Judge

Date: 11-3-08